

Gigstream and Aerwave Combine to Create Leading National Multifamily Connectivity Provider

Combined company will serve residents and property owners across 29 states, 54 markets, and 204 cities, backed by expanded engineering and support resources

Atlanta, Georgia – September 2, 2026 – Gigstream, a leading provider of managed connectivity and property-wide Wi-Fi solutions for multifamily and commercial properties, today announced its combination with Aerwave, creating a next-generation managed Wi-Fi platform that will transform connectivity across the real estate industry. The two trusted companies are creating one stronger organization with the scale, expertise, and innovation to advance how multifamily communities connect and operate.

Demand for enterprise-grade, portfolio-wide connectivity has accelerated as the NMHC Top 50 property managers have grown their collective portfolios by more than 60% over the past decade, consolidating purchasing decisions with fewer, larger operators who need a single partner capable of delivering consistent service at national scale. The combined Gigstream-Aerwave platform is built to meet that demand, pairing broader operational capacity and deeper engineering expertise with a footprint spanning 29 states, 54 markets and 204 cities.

“Our vision has always been to build the industry’s most trusted connectivity partner for multifamily communities,” said Patrick Albus, Chief Executive Officer of Gigstream. “These two exceptional organizations have complementary strengths and shared commitments; working together, we will raise the bar for our industry. Together, we have the scale, talent, and expertise to help define what the next generation of connected communities looks like.”

“This is about unlocking potential,” said Ed Wolff, Chief Executive Officer of Aerwave. “Gigstream and Aerwave are well positioned to accelerate growth, elevate the customer experience, and shape the future of connectivity through greater innovation, broader reach, and superior execution to create the premier connectivity platform for the future of multifamily living.”

Service will continue without interruption for existing customers of both companies. Over time, residents and property teams will benefit from the combined organization’s expanded connectivity solutions across a larger national footprint.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed. Houlihan Lokey served as the exclusive financial advisor to Gigstream and Bank Street served as the exclusive financial advisor to Aerwave in connection with the transaction.

About Gigstream

Founded in 2017, Gigstream provides property-wide internet and managed WiFi solutions to large multifamily communities nationwide. Through long-term partnerships and a growing national footprint, Gigstream is building the future of broadband for residents and property owners. For more information, visit www.gigstream.com.

About Aerwave

Founded in 2019, Aerwave is a next-generation managed WiFi platform delivering fiber-based connectivity solutions for multifamily, build-to-rent, condominium, and master-planned communities across the United States. The company combines reliable, secure infrastructure with innovative technology that enhances the resident experience while helping property owners and operators create smarter, more connected communities.